Types of Stories

Fairy Tales

Structure:

Setting is vague-Once upon a time; long, long ago

Recount in chronological order

Re-telling of events that have happened to a main character who has come into contact with the 'Fairy world.'

Hero or heroine is searching for something

Characters may be fairy folk or talking animals

Numbers or patterns are usually significant especially 3 and 7

Usually a happy ending

Vocabulary:

Language reflects the settings- archaic language

Phrases that have strong rhyme or rhythm

Repetition of a significant line

Use different styles of language for the characters to show contrast between them

Fables

Structure:

Usually short with few characters

Simple structure with beginning, complication and resolution

Establish the setting in the first line

Two characters meet, something happens and a lesson is learnt

Characters are often animals with human characteristics and traits

Use the main characters to give the fable a title

State the moral of the fable at the end

Dialogue or action is used to advance the plot

Dialogue is used to state a moral rather than describing characters

Give clues as to what might happen e.g. a sly fox was watching the chickens behind the fence

Vocabulary:

Be specific with character description e.g. A crafty stork...a timid lion...

Limited use of description because events are more important than settings

Use a question to introduce one character to another e.g. why are you waiting here little frog?

The passing of time reflected by using adverbs of time or adverbials
